Address of the Self-taught South Carolina Lady-Sculptor,
"Miss Ade Sims

Jonesville

Union County

South Carolina "

The name on Miss Sims' Room, in favor of Mr. Corcoran to deliver the Statuette was not used, but was delivered to me this 18 Feb 1874 at the C. G. a.,

The Statuette submitted to Mr. Corcoran, is An Original Portrait from Life, of an old Senant belonging to her Grand father Gene Sims, - and so perfect is the likeness, and so life-like the figure, that it is instantly recognized by any one who knew him -

The Statuette is not offered for sale - The writer having purchased it of the Artist more than a year since, but unable feel it her duty to part with it, if Mr.
Corcoran recognizing its merit, with the spirit of a Lorenzo De Medici, wished to add such work of native talent, to his Art Gallery, The amt. paid to go directly to the Artist by draft - A letter from Miss Sims to the writer when in W. City two weeks since, expressing great anxiety to obtain a "Garden chair" for a near and dear relative, - a "hopeless invalid" - suggested the thought that the sale of "Uncle Johnny" might obtain for the dear one, this comfort - and if so, the owner could not feel happy to retain it, tho' valuing it highly - Failing this, perhaps Mr. Corcoran will perhaps retain it, where it can be seen, until sent for by order from the undersigned.
This application is tentative to Miss Sims, but if a price sufficient to buy a good propelling chair is offered, it can be sent by draft to Miss Sims, whose address is given - If declined - please reply in envelope enclosed to Wm. Mary, Queen, Dean Lock Box 29.

Sir,

As a Patron of Art
your attention is very respectfully called to a small, but original work, executed by a Lady of this State Miss Ade Sims (a connec-tion of Col: Elmer, the successor of Mr Calhoun in the U. S. Senate)

It has been pronounced by Judges "a work of very unusual merit," and if so, all who are readily such, will recognize and appreciate it, and at least speak a word of encouragement - more valuable by the true disciple of Art, than pecuniary rewards.

Miss Sims has executed many works - compositions from Paintings by the old masters - or from Illustrations of Goethe & also carved Cameo's, but

Dear Sir,

I have received your official notice of my election as Curator to the "Corcoran Gallery of Art," and hasten to signify my acceptance of it, with thanks for the honor conferred upon me. Appreciating as I do the grave responsibilities as well as honor of that position, I will bring to the performance of its duties my utmost capabilities professional & otherwise to execute the wishes of the Board of Trustees in carrying out the intentions of the magnificent Founder of their noble Trust.

I will be occupied this day in dissolving my connection with my late vocation, and to-morrow will be ready to assume the duties connected with my post as Curator.

Very respectfully Yours, Wm. MacLeod

Washington, Nov. 7, 1873

Dear Sir:

The increasing interest in the subject of Art-training and in Art-Museums as auxiliary thereto, induced the Bureau of Education to embody in its last-annual report-(see pp 603, et-seq.) an essay on that topic, by one of the most-eminent-of American educators. Since the publication of the essay, numerous suggestions have been received as to the desirableness of gathering detailed statistics of collections in Art and Archaeology, with a view of showing the means for Art-culture possessed by our higher institutions of learning, as well as the extent of other collections accessible to students and the general public in the large cities of the country.

In furtherance of the suggestions, the enclosed schedule of enquiries has been prepared, and this office would esteem it a great-favor, if you would lend your
